Bo Tree Kitchen

The Bo Tree (Ficus religiosa, Mulberry family), with its long tailed, heart shaped leaves has a celebrated history, rich in legend. It was under the branches of the Bo Tree that Buddha sat meditating on the meaning of existence, and there, sheltered by its constantly trembling leaves, that he achieved nirvana, or divine enlightenment, thus inspiring him, in 528 BC, to found a new religion, Buddhism.

For its role in the Buddha's enlightenment the Bo Tree is deeply venerated. There are also mundane and immediately practical uses for the leaves, as nourishing green fodder for elephants and as an alternative food for silkworms. The Bo Tree is a tree that brings peace.

Bo Tree Kitchen brings together Chiang Mai Kitchen in Oxford (renowned as the best Thai restaurant west of Bangkok) and the Bo Tree Belfast. We hope that Bo Tree Kitchen will offer you all a small slice of happiness, fantastic food and a great night out!
